1. On 3 October, surveying and levelling work at Gardelegen airfield was discontinued.
2. On 20 October, no air force unit was stationed at the field. There were no indications that the installation was to be reconditioned. A portion of the field was used as a training area, while the remainder was under cultivation.

1.  Comment. Previous information indicated that Gardelegen airfield would be reconditioned. On 16 September 1952, a shipment of 170 air force personnel and 39 trucks arrived at the field. It appears that they left the installation in the meantime. The reconstruction of the field may have been postponed until 1953.
